GETTING STARTED

You Can Help Set Cancer Priorities

Add your voice to make a difference. Here are three ways to get involved.

To support cancer-prevention research and stricter environmental regulations, contact:

THE ENVIRONMENTAL PROTECTION AGENCY. This government agency tests and regulates toxic substances and known carcinogens. You can comment on pesticides undergoing safety reviews by logging onto the EPA website during "open comment periods" (www.epa.gov/pesticides), or write to EPA administrator Christine Todd Whitman, EPA, 1200 Pennsylvania Avenue, NW, 1101-A, Washington, DC 20460.

THE SENATE CANCER COALITION. This committee has sponsored a bill that would require that 70 percent of proceeds from the U.S. Postal Service's breast cancer stamp be given to the National Institute for Environmental Health Sciences for research into the cancer-causing effects of pollution. To support this bill, write to Senator Diane Feinstein, D-Calif., Co-chair, 331 Hart Senate Office Building, Washington, DC 20515, or email her at senator@feinstein.senate.gov.

To support research on alternative therapies for cancer and reduce the government's regulatory authority over nontoxic therapies, contact:

THE COMMITTEE ON GOVERNMENT REFORM. This committee wants to encourage alternative cancer therapy research and to ensure that these therapies are available to the public. To support this work, write to Rep. Dan Burton,

R-Ind., Chairman, 2185 Rayburn House Office Building, Washington, DC 20515. THE NATIONAL FOUNDATION FOR ALTERNATIVE MEDICINE. This organization promotes the right to use alternative and complementary cancer treatments and provides information about these therapies to patients. To find out how to contribute to this organization, call 202-463-4900, or visit www.nfam.org.

To help determine how government cancer research money is spent, contact:

THE HOUSE AND SENATE APPROPRIATIONS SUBCOMMITTEES ON LABOR, HEALTH AND HUMAN SERVICES AND EDUCATION. These subcommittees accept public input on government allocations. Write to Congressman Ralph Regula, R-Ohio, U.S. House of Representatives, 2306 Rayburn House Office Building, Washington, DC 20515; and Senator Arlen Specter, R-Pa., 711 Hart Senate Office Building, Washington, DC 20510. —Stephen Camelio
